To TERRIFIC GROWNS.—For your interest and for the interest at large, we would be glad to have you advise us immediately—
1st.—The prospects of the growing crop.
2d.—What will likely be the product as compared with last year—%, %, %, or % of the quantity raised.

A POLITICAL BRIEF.—Abraham Lincoln ought not to be re-elected President of this country for many reasons. We will enumerate some of them.

1. He has violated his official oath to "preserve, protect, and defend the constitution."

2. He has violated the constitution in numerous instances and in all its guaranteed for the liberty of the citizen.

3. He has attempted to subvert civil by military power.

4. He has caused freemen to be secretly seized and imprisoned; judged them in secret; denied them the privilege of habeas corpus; tried them for crimes unknown to the law before mock tribunals of his own creation; and inflicted upon them grievous and unlawful punishments.

5. He has suppressed free suffrage by armed force; prohibited and prevented voting for qualified candidates; and incarcerated men for being candidates in disregard of his prohibition.

6. He has seized private property without necessity and without compensation.

7. He has restricted and tried to suppress the freedom of speech and the freedom of the press.

8. He has infringed the right of the people to keep and bear arms.

9. He has given a fluctuating, dependent currency, instead of gold and silver coins, thereby deranging all commercial affairs, adding greatly to the burden of taxation without any benefit to the national treasury, and increasing debts between the states, instead of a legal tender discharge for the half or a third in value of the legal demand, at the same time destroying the national credit both as to responsibility and good faith.

10. He has violated his oft-repeated personal and private pledges, their violation in reference to Kentucky in particular being so flagrant as to be disgraceful to him as an officer and dishonorable to him as a man.

11. He has usurped power to proclaim martial law over Kentucky without necessity, and upon protests so notoriously false as to induce suspicion of the most sinister motives, vexing her with trade regulations, which, beside the favoring of adjoining States to her prejudice, have no practical effect but that of harassing her citizens and affording abolitionists the opportunity of being tried.

12. He has tarnished the national honor by violating the cherished right of asylum in his illegal kidnapping and extradition of Argenzines.

13. He has degraded the nation by his apology to the French Emperor for a unanimous resolution of the House of Representatives expressing truly the sentiments of the nation in favor of the Monroe doctrine.

14. He has fearfully imperiled the Union cause by his illegal abolition proclamations, clinching it the whole by his recent manifesto, in which he has the insolence to proclaim that the nation shall not peace upon but upon all other terms of his dictation.

15. He has, by abandoning the policy of the war as proclaimed at its commencement by Congress and ratified by the nation, and converting it into an abolition crusade, usurped power that does not belong either to the Executive or to Congress or to both together, unmasked his hidden schemes, divided the North, united the South, and committed a treacherous attack upon the South, and, living on scant army rations for the amusement of Mr. Stanton, and the elevation of the grimacing American citizens of African descent. But they are not to be left off so easily, and the Secretary of War says they must be held to drill and lead other conscripts to battle. Their families are nothing; their health may fail; their business goes to ruin; their wives and children starve; but the contractors must flourish and the blessed nigger be freed. We cannot believe that the War Bureau gave this subject that careful attention in all its bearings which it should have commanded. We cannot believe that Mr. Stanton reflected that his new order would not only deprive our Union officers of their bounty, but also of their personal liberties. We beg him, therefore, in the name of justice and humanity, to rescind the order, which is so painfully oppressive to the gallant men who are winning the glorious victories that he is enabled to flash across the telegraph wires to stir the pulses and awaken the enthusiasm of the nation.

SHARES OF HODGINS AND MCFINGAL!—The Lafayette Courier, a very fierce champion of abolitionism, first this broadside into the conservative party:

WEEKLY JOURNAL

Sept. 18.

WASHINGTON. Sept. 18. The Richmond Examiner of Wednesday last, says it was reported on Saturday evening that General Lee intended to withdraw from Mobile Bay with his fleet and go to Wilmington, and the Mobile Register of the 2d says that the Yankee Generals are endeavoring to make the reduction and capture of Mobile or hold what they have gained, and transfer the main part of the fleet to another field of operations.

E. M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON. Sept. 19. Large numbers of troops were passed through the city since Saturday who will be heard from in the proper time and place.

Richmond papers of Wednesday say that the brutal winter has not been removed from the city, while the story that its fleet is in the harbor is still a popular one, and the rebels' forces are being sent Eastward, out of the way of any movement by Sherman.

It is possible that during the fall negro troops may be brought to the front, and the commanding general will be colored men.

TENNESSEE. Sept. 20. Captain John Edwards has been assigned to the command of the rebels in the Southwestern Virginia Department, vice John Morgan, relieved three days before he was killed.

Basil Duke, General-in-Chief of all of the rebel forces, is now in command of Morgan's troops.

A gentleman, who left Richmond last Tuesday, says the general belief was that the great battle would be fought. It shows the coming events to be near.

There was a collision on the road south from Atlanta on the 2d, near Barnesville. On one of the trains were wounded soldiers from the Yankees, and two rebels were killed and forty wounded. Eighteen Yankees prisoners were on the train, and were active in caring for the wounded rebels. Two engineers were also killed.

The news of importance from Petersburg, that our troops are watchful, fearing confident that the quietus soon will be broken by the rebels, who are receiving reinforcements and supplies.

Grant is well prepared for them, however, as the troops are in good fighting condition, and recruits are daily going to him.

Rebel General Price's movements toward Missouri are assuming serious proportions. It is supposed to be intended to aid the election of his comrade, L. L. Price, to the Georgia Legislature, though Gen. Grant is also mentioned.

Up to the last moment, every entreaty for the further postponement of the draft has been studiously resisted, and the Territorial and State authorities have agreed upon an exchange of all prisoners each side whom their respective surrogates pronounced unfit for duty for sick men.

NEW YORK. September 19. The World's Army of the Potomac correspondent of the 17th, gives the following account of the last battle of Columbia fought in front of the city in two strong lines of battle, the first comprising the troops of Wm. H. Lee's 2d Legion, the aggregate number of men exceeding 10,000.

Accordingly, the day after the engagement, the rebels were driven back across the river, and were again engaged in a fierce conflict close on the opposite bank.

Quietly breaking in the front of our pickets, the enemy, turned by right and left, moved around the cattle, and drove off the entire herd, which had been captured by the rebels. All this was done so quickly that it was impossible to gain any reinforcements here in time to check the bold movement.

A brigade of cavalry under Gen. Davis, and a battery under Gen. Kane, were sent out with a view of intercepting them. It is believed that they cross the Norfolk Rail-road, but their success will all depend upon the arrival of the rebels.

At about the same time an attack on one rear in two consecutive movements was made against our lines in front of Crawford's and Ainsworth's farms.

The picks being driven in on the main road, on both occasions, this fact leads to the belief that the massing of troops at this point was only a feint, a fact in a sort of movement, and that the rebels had been driven off at the time of closing this despatch nothing definite has been heard from the pursuing force.

The Herald's correspondent says: The telegraphic construction corps, engaged in putting up the railroad between Newbern and Pocahontas, numbering 40 men, under Wm. Mcintosh, with 6 wagons, 26 miles, and 20 miles of wire also captured. Wm. Mcintosh, Frank Thompson, and a colored teamster, are the only persons to have escaped, as far as the party knows.

The eighth and 16th Pennsylvania and 1st Maine regiments formed on the left of the road, while the 1st Massachusetts and 6th Ohio, and the 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th,
